SPEAKER:

Dr. Ki'Mi' Wilson

KiMi Wilson is committed to revolutionizing education through love and compassion. At Cal State LA he is an assistant professor in Curriculum and Instruction with a passion for teaching undergraduate and graduate students how to reinvigorate math learning, so it is exciting for children, particularly marginalized populations who have been historically failed in teaching and learning. Previously, he was an elementary and high school teacher in Compton and Los Angeles and has been in education for over fifteen years. Dr. Wilson's ethnographic research focuses on Black boys' math and science identity development, which will be featured in an upcoming book scheduled to be released in Fall 2020. Dr. Wilson received his B.A. in Sociology from Loyola Marymount University, and he later earned a doctorate in education from Cal State LA. Through Equation 2 Success, KiMi offers a boutique, personable, professional development experience for schools to transform learning for the next generation of amazing minds.
